<sup>7</sup> “If the Methodist Church canonized saints then surely Susanna would have been thus honoured, but since this is not our custom, let us remember her with gratitude, and be mindful of the fact that she gave to the world two sons who changed the face of these islands in the eighteenth century.” Vakai ki Mary Greetham, Susanna Wesley: Mother of Methodism (Peterborough: Foundery Press 1994). 1.

<sup>9</sup> “Father of Susannah Wesley - and thus grandfather of the Methodism pioneers John and Charles Wesley, Annesley was a Puritan preacher, mostly in the meeting houses around Bishopsgate and Spitalfields. Susannah was a daughter of his second wife Mary White - one of a reputed 25 children! Annesley lost his living at St Giles Cripplegate as a result of the 'Great Ejection', and became itinerant, preaching at small dissenter houses in the Bishopsgate and Spitalfields area.” <https://www.findagrave.com/memorial/13262473/samuel-annesley> (02.09.2019).

<sup>10</sup> “Description: Liturgical conformity in the Church was not established until 1549, when Parliament in a constitutionally significant move passed an Act of Uniformity, which enforced the use of a book of common prayer. The Prayer Book, which had been drafted by Thomas Cranmer, the Archbishop of Canterbury and protestant reformer, was replaced by a second and more radical version in 1552. The reign of Mary I saw the execution of Cranmer and the brief restoration of Catholicism, together with a return to earlier orders of service. Following the accession of Elizabeth I a third Act of Uniformity (pictured) was passed in 1559, authorising a book of common prayer which was similar to the 1552 version but which retained some Catholic elements.” <https://www.parliament.uk/about/living-heritage/transformingsociety/private-lives/religion/collections/common-prayer/act-of-uniformity-1559/> (02.09.2019).

The New birth, Inward and Outward Holiness.”
5. Lotu ta’etukua ke taupau’I ho’o tui ki he ‘Otua pea ke faka’osi ‘aki ke tohi ki ho loto pea fakama’u e Folofola kuo ke lau ki ho’o manatu – “Fifth, serious and earnest prayer should be made before approaching the oracle of God, seeing that Scripture can only be understood through the same spirit whereby it was given. Prayer should be offered at the close in order that what is read may be written upon the heart.”
6. Lolotonga ho’o lau e Folofola, fakafaingamalie ho loto, fakakaukau mo hoo mo’ui ke sivi ‘e he Folofola ‘ete mo’ui – “Sixth, there should be period of self examinations during the reading of the Scripture, with both heart and life being scrutinized. And whatever light is given should be used to the uttermost, and that immediately. Let there be no delay. Whenever you resolve, begin to execute the first moment you can. So shall you find this word to be the power of God unto present, and eternal salvation.”<sup>16</sup>

TAIMI LOTU: Kuo pau ke ‘i ai hono potu makehe ‘i he ‘api, pea ‘i he mo’ui ‘a e tamasi’i mo ta’ahine. Lotu ko e Talanoa mo e ‘Eiki, ko e fe’ao mo e ‘Otua.
